Quincy MA real estate company, Red Door Real Estate offers interactive real estate website with map based property search features.

Red Door Real Estate of Quincy MA has redesigned their website to offer an enhanced experience for home buyers in Massachusetts.

QUINCY, MA (Jan 2012) - Quincy MA real estate company, Red Door Real Estate has partnered with Boston Logic to design a user friendly website adding a unique look and feel as well as adding a few great features for website visitors. Home seekers can access the Massachusetts MLS or multiple listing services for the most accurate data on homes for sale in their desired location. Through an IDX feed, Red Door Real Estate has enhanced their home search feature to provide site visitors with information on properties for sale extracted directly from MLSPIN, Boston's MLS service provider. Listing information is seamlessly displayed on the Red Door Real Estate website.

Homes for sale are displayed on a map based property search so that home seekers can compare locations of listings available throughout a specific area. This interactive map offers an interactive feature powered by Yelp that can show locations of attractions of their choice such as restaurants and public transportation stations. The MBTA search tool can be helpful to both renters and home seekers that desire to be close to public transportation.

Red Door Real Estate offers Town pages to provide information on specific towns and neighborhoods in the Quincy MA, Weymouth MA, Braintree MA and Milton MA area. Each town page provides information on the unique characteristics of the town or neighborhood as well as homes for sale within that area. Breaking the home search by neighborhood is great for home seekers looking for a specific school district or for a specific neighborhood feel.

Despite pages of useful content providing website visitors with useful home buying information and home selling tips, Red Door Real Estate also offers a blog. The blog is designed to provide decorating tips, up to date home buying information, home selling preparation tips and much more.

Home buyers can sign up for automatic email updates for homes that meet their home search through the Red Door website. This feature provides accurate and up to date information on homes for sale directly to the home buyers email. Home seekers can set search parameter for their home search and the Red Door system will email results to an email address when new properties come on the market that meet that search criteria. This can also be helpful for home sellers looking to get information on their competition currently on the market.
